Course fees

£1310

Course location

University of Kent

Target audience

Non-native teachers who teach their curriculum subject(s) in English to learners aged 7-12

You need at least an intermediate level of English (B1)

Course summary

The aim of this course is to help you gain confidence in your ability to get better at using English for your teaching.

This course is both a language and methodology course. It will not be subject specific but will work on language that is needed across the curriculum.

However, participants will be encouraged to teach a topic related to their teaching subject, so that they can focus on their specific needs.

This course also provides a large amount of English throughout.

Course content

The language of classroom management and instruction

Improving your ability to explain subjects in simple or more complex English, as required
